Proclaiming the Sovereign Majesty of God

There is one text more than any other to which the life of Jonathan Edwards leads us back. It is at the heart of the Resolutions he wrote as a young Christian; he preached it in Boston at the age of twenty-seven when he said, ‘the creature is nothing, and God is all’; and he delighted in it the longer he lived. The text is I Corinthians 10:31: ‘Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.’ To exalt man is to disown the purpose of God that ‘no flesh should glory in his presence’. All good is given to believers—all grace, all revival, all redemption, all eternity—that we might be abased and find our all in God. Whatever the hardships, the persecution or the disappointments in things temporal, the churches brightest and happiest days are those in which she is learning to sing, “Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory’ (Psa. 115:1), for this is God’s preparation for the world where we all say,

Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honor, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen (Rev. 7:12).
